

Name: Dae Kyung Sohn, M.D., Ph.D.

Dr. Dae Kyung Sohn is the Director of the Healthcare Platform Center and the Chief Scientist of the Division of Convergence Technology at the National Cancer Center, Korea. He is also the Professor of the Department of Cancer Control and Population Health at the National Cancer Center Graduate School of Cancer Science and Policy.

Dr. Sohn graduated from the College of Medicine, Seoul National University and then he got the Ph.D. at the Chungbuk National University College of Medicine, Korea. After finishing his residency program at the Department of Surgery, Seoul National University Hospital, he had trained endoscopy at the National Cancer Center since 2002. He also trained as the research fellow at the Department of Surgery, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, in 2008.

He has a wide spectrum of research exposure and interests including

- 1) Diagnosis and Treatment of Early Colorectal Cancer
- 2) Therapeutic Colonoscopy including Polypectomy, Endoscopic Submucosal Dissection, Tattooing and Stent insertion, Etc.
- 3) Natural Orifice Transluminal Endoscopic Surgery (NOTES)
- 4) Development of Medical Devices